Three local wineries showcase their ware this weekend along with exotic food and acoustic music at the Taste of Southern Illinois.

Wine of the times

JENNIFER CAMDEN
DE NEWS EDITOR

Though people throughout the ages have had a love/hate relationship with wine, area wine lovers will joyfully celebrate the fermented grape (and apple, peach and blueberry) in Alto Pass this weekend.

Alto Vineyards of Alto Pass, Owl Creek Vineyard of Cobden and the Pomona Winery of Pomona will join to share the fruits of their labors with hundreds of would-be wine connoisseurs at the second annual Taste of Southern Illinois.

The festival, which also will feature food and acoustic music, is scheduled from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Alto Vineyards.

Leon Dangbar, Alto Vineyards business manager, said the event will showcase the region's budding wine industry.

"It helps promote the fact that there are three wineries in Southern Illinois, and it gives people the opportunity to sample wines from all the wineries," he said.

There will be about 25 varieties of wine available, by the glass or bottle, so festival-goers can practice their wine-tasting skills.

Paul Renzaglia, Alto Vineyards winemaker, said a good wine has a quality bouquet, or aroma. When people swirl around wine in their mouths, it releases the full aroma, though he said swirling wine is not always a delicate process.

"Sometimes it gets kind of messy with certain people, but it does give a better idea of what (the wine) tastes like," he said.

Alto Vineyards will offer 12 wines, all made from grapes. They range in hue from blood-red to blushing pink to almost-transparent white. The winery also produces port, a dark, fortified wine.

five grape wines to the event, said Ted Wichmann, the vineyard president and winemaker.

Included in that assortment is the vineyard's 1995 Owls Leap, a red wine that took third place in its class at Pennsylvania's Eastern International Wine Competition in March.

Wichmann said Owls Leap tastes faintly of blackberry, and because the wine is aged in oak, has hints of vanilla.

Pomona Winery makes no grape wines, but will bring wines to the weekend event made from apples, peaches and blueberries, said George Majka, part-owner of the winery. Majka said the Pomona Winery's six apple wines range in taste from rather dry to rather sweet.

The peach and blueberry wines are fortified dessert wines, which are sweeter and have higher alcohol contents — about 16 percent — than regular wines, which have alcohol contents of up to 14 percent.

Majka said he especially is proud of the peach wine, which has a lot of "nose," or

SIUC may house the Grape and Wine Resources Council to promote the Illinois wine industry.

ALAN SCARPEFF
WEEKENDER EDITOR

SIUC may take on a role in developing the Illinois wine industry next year if Gov. Jim Edgar signs legislation to create a Grape and Wine Resources Council that would be housed at the University.

The General Assembly passed a bill earlier this year that would create the council, and earmarked $200,000 in the state's 1998 budget for it. The council would provide expertise and technical support on growing grapes and making and promoting wine.

Raymond Lenzi, executive director of the SIUC Office of Economic and Regional Development, helped develop the idea for the council.

Lenzi said states such as Missouri and Ohio created wine councils similar to the one proposed in Illinois. Those two states actually doubled their intrastate wine sales during the past five years, he said.

"We think it's (the council) absolutely critical," Lenzi said. "The states that have the fastest-growing industries — outside of California — all have a body like this."

If Edgar signs the bill, the 17-member panel will be headed by James McGuire, SIUC College of Agriculture dean. The University of Illinois also will provide research assistance and have a representative on the council.

Blues man Jimmy Johnson brings a lifetime of talents to the Sunset Concerts.

ALAN SCHNEPP
WEEKENDER EDITOR

Sunset Concerts often feature bands that are "up and coming." Jimmy Johnson, the next act in the concert series, does not fit that description.

Johnson has had a 38-year career as a blues musician, playing with big names such as Otis Clay, Otis Rush, and Jimmy Dawkins and even garnering a 1978 Grammy nomination for his blues.

Success did not come instantly, however. Johnson's first gig, as a guitarist backing a band on the south side of Chicago in noticed he could make more money gigging for R&B than for the blues. He spent the next 15 years leading various R&B acts in the Chicago area before returning to his musical roots in 1974.

That was when he hooked up with Dawkins and Rush for a tour of Japan. He formed his own band a few years later, and the Grammy nomination and gigs in Europe, the United States and Africa followed.

"I got fired because, well, I didn't play so good... The cat told me I just wasn't cutting it."

JIMMY JOHNSON
BLUES ARTIST

He now spends his days at his home near Chicago, playing pool with blues legend Lonnie Brooks and going out for an occasional show.

The most recent of his five albums, "I'm a Jockey" (Polygram/Verve), is reported to have sold 40,000 copies, a figure he regards suspiciously.

"They're not gonna give you the real count," he laughs, "cause they don't want to pay you!"

Johnson's music has been labeled as "straight blues," but, like most musicians, he's not too comfortable with labels.

"My music is pretty much a mystery," he said. "My blues is not Muddy Waters blues; it's more funky blues. It's probably closer to B.B. King. I wish I could play Muddy Waters style. I mean, I can play it, but not well."

But Johnson can certainly play, at least according to the Village Voice, which gushed that Johnson offers "original compositions as thoughtful, and every bit as striking as Robert Cray's, sung in dramatic and highly effective fashion."

Johnson's music took him to Senegal, a small country on the west coast of Africa, a few years ago. The handful of gigs he played there was a disturbing experience for him.

The former French colony was a clearinghouse for slaves headed for the United States in the 18th and 19th centuries. He first became unnerved by the stories of slavery's atrocities local tour guides told him. Later, he was moved by the poverty in the area.

"I gave away half of my clothes, and I gave away a lot of money," he said. "Man, I'm gonna tell you, I don't care how bad it gets here, God bless America. You do not want to be in Africa."

When he played his first gig in Senegal, he realized the native Africans could not afford to see the show.

"Everybody we were playing for was French," he said. "It was crazy. I went all the way to Africa to play for French people."

Johnson's show starts at 7 p.m. on the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

1959, ended in failure.

"I got fired because, well, I didn't play so good," he admits. "I can understand that. The cat told me I just wasn't cutting it."

Johnson didn't quit, and he got better. Later that year, he established himself as a competent guitarist and harmonica player. He started playing blues with Magic Sam and Slim Willis, among others, before he

Shipwrecked Speed sequel sinks

JASON ADRIAN
DE MOVIE REVIEWER

Audiences claiming that a sequel to the action-packed "Speed" would never float without the star power of Keanu Reeves were wrong. "Speed 2: Cruise Control" sinks regardless.

That's too bad. I almost was salivating in anticipation of more death-defying stunts and thrilling sequences similar to those that put me on the edge of my seat during "Speed."

Sandra Bullock returns as Annie Porter, the ditzy, joke-popping heroine from "Speed." No longer with Reeves' character, Jack, Annie courts a new beau, Alex Shaw (Jason Patric).

Alex, like Jack, is part of the LAPD's suicide squad (how convenient). He and Annie decide to take a pleasure cruise to celebrate their seven-month anniversary.

John Geiger (Willem Dafoe) plays a disgruntled computer genius set on hijacking the luxury liner to fulfill a maniacal retribution plan. It turns out he was fired for medical reasons after designing the ship's automatic control system.

With strategically placed explosive charges all over the ship, Geiger single-handedly takes command. He calls for the immediate evacuation of the passengers and crew so he can heist the multi-million-dollar collection of diamonds that happens to be stored on board.

What Geiger did not plan for — and what the audience easily was expecting — was that he would have his hands full as Alex, Annie and a handful of others manage to stay on the ship and thwart his plans.

By this time, you will be admiring Reeves for refraining from this poor excuse for an action movie. Director Jan De Bont's ("Twister," "Speed") jerky camera shots left me dizzy, and the special effects are inferior. He even uses slow motion in several action shots as if he were bracing the audience for something awe-inspiring.

Bullock's dry comments come off as unfunny and recited, while Dafoe, trying to be psychotic, is downright lame. Action movie first-timer Patric is the only actor who shows any talent, but he merely treads water in the weak script. If you go to see "Speed 2," don't expect anything like "Speed." The letdown will be even worse if you do.

I'm Bout It
ORIGINAL SOUNDTRACK
No Limit — 1997

You just may be lucky enough to find the straight-to-video "gangsta" movie release "I'm Bout It" right next to its soundtrack at a local store. If you do, pass up the movie and get the soundtrack. It might be worth your while.

Several artists contribute to the Master P-produced "I'm Bout It," which spotlights what many may see as an unconventional form of hip-hop. Radio stations and music shows only recently have begun to widen their focus to include hip-hop from areas other than the East and West coasts. Harder "Dirty South" artists like Eightball & MJG and Master P sell a lot of CDs while almost promoting themselves. The "I'm Bout It" soundtrack is good enough to sell more.

The theme of the breakout single, "If I Could Change," by Master P and Steady Mobbin', sounds like it was lifted straight off 2Pac's "Me Against the World" LP. But who gets tired of "gangsta" lamenting their hard lifestyles? I don't, especially if there's a strong beat and a catchy hook (borrowed from Bobby Caldwell's "What You Won't Do For Love") to go along with the woe. "Meal Ticket," featuring Master P, Eightball & MJG and U.G.K. (remember them from "Pocket Full Of Stones?") also is good.

If you don't get tired of the "I'm bout it," "bout it" theme, other standouts are "Faces of Death," "Come On," "Don't Mess Around" and "Before I Die." This is a pretty good CD as a whole, but you've gotta wonder if Master P and his No Limit Records artists' material will ever reach a limit. The song themes found on the "I'm Bout It" soundtrack may sound familiar to those who have other No Limit releases.

Wu-Tang Clan
WU-TANG FOREVER
Loud/RCA — 1997

When an artist or group releases a new double CD, many people buy it expecting two CDs full of good material. More often than not, they get one CD full of filler. If they're lucky.

Fortunately, acts like the Wu-Tang Clan make people actually want to listen to 27 tracks by the same group.

Following the trend of hip-hop double albums started by Tupac Shakur, the Wu-Tang Clan offers fans a much-needed shot of pure hip-hop at a time when the entire culture itself seems to be on life support.

You can listen to "Wu-Tang Forever" from beginning to end — repeatedly, if you have the time. And I'm not saying that just because it's the "Wu." I can only highlight a few songs here — with any more I would take up the entire page to explore the beats and lyrics.

You can listen to a lot of hip-hop tunes and immediately know what samples or loops artists lift from other works to create their new songs. The Wu-Tang Clan uses Albert King's "I'll Play The Blues For You" in "As High As Wu-Tang Get," and it's the only recognizable song on either CD. And that's only used for a few seconds before The Rza spins off into an entirely different bass line. If others find more, it means they had to do a lot of searching. That's a good sign at a time when hip-hop songs are beginning to sound more alike than usual.

Check that song out, as well as "Visionz," "Reunited," "Triumph," "Bells Of War," "Duck Season," "Black Shampoo," ... nah, forget it. I can't list them all. Buy this CD, even if you have to pass up releases by wanna-be hip-hop "divas" and high-roller "plays" to do so.

Veruca Salt
EIGHT ARMS TO HOLD YOU
Outpost — 1997

Veruca Salt burst onto the alternative and popular music scene in 1994 with its smash song "Seether." A heap of critical scorn followed when audiences discovered that aside from "Seether," the rest of the band's debut album, "American Thighs," was pretty limp.

The band's sophomore effort, "Eight Arms to Hold You," garners somewhat stronger material and holds true to the effeminate songwriting inspirations and girlish vocals of Nina Gordon and Louise Post.

From the album opener, "Straight," "Eight Arms" has a run of four songs that emulate the better ones on "American Thighs." Then the songs fluctuate between ballads ("Loneliness Is Worse") and lighter rock songs ("With David Bowie") that make the album devoid of direction.

That's not to say the album is not fun to listen to. Anybody in or between relationships surely can relate to the songs such as "One Last Time" and "Benjamin," even if the songs do not have clear-cut purpose or ambition.

With "Volcano Girls," however, the band actually seems to discover its own unique sound. The song's heavy guitar licks and the high-pitched harmonizations between Post and Gordon prove Veruca Salt can rock hard while retaining a pop sound.

Post and Gordon (guitarists/vocalists) wrote all the songs on the album. Post usually sticks to harder-edged songs that shed light on her heavy metal roots. Gordon pens ballads that seemed out of place on "American Thighs" and don't fit in well here, either. This seems to be the main thing keeping Veruca Salt from making a great rock album.

The Chicago-based quartet has not evolved to its peak yet, but it is showing signs of progression.

Guided by Voices
MAG EARWHIG!
Matador — 1997

Let's imagine, for a moment, that the Chicago Bulls lost the NBA championship. Sportswriters would spend the next month focusing on the failure of Michael Jordan's teammates to muster up enough support to help their superior leader over the top.

Robert Pollard, the frontman and chief songwriter of Dayton, Ohio's, Guided by Voices, has dealt with mediocre teammates for years. About 40 people have played in the band since 1986. Like the Bulls, however, GBV has been quite successful at its craft — creating pop songs that are best described as a blend of the Who, the Beatles and punk rock with very weird lyrics. Pollard recently made a move to improve his band that Jordan could only fantasize of making: He traded the entire team.

Before recording the latest GBV album, "Mag Earwhig!" Pollard dismissed the rest of the band (including brother Jim Pollard) and replaced them with the members of Cleveland's Cobra Verde. Good move.

GBV always has been able to pull off catchy little pop tunes. Now, however, they rock.

The pixie-like plucking of ex-GBV guitarist Tobin Sprout has been replaced with Cobra Verde's full-scale rock 'n' roll grind, whummy bars and all. This execution, along with the generous use of overdubs, has changed GBV's sometimes anorexic sound into a fuller, fatter groove suitable for turning up loud.

The most interesting facets of GBV — Pollard's songwriting and surreal lyrics — are left intact with "Mag Earwhig." This makes it satisfying for old fans, but it's also a good GBV 101 for the uninitiated to see what this band is about. So far, Pollard's trade is looking as good as swapping Robert Parish for Karl Malone.

Joseph set to rock McLeod

NICE COAT: Different musical styles set 'Joseph' apart from other productions.

MELISSA JAKUBOWSKI
 DE MANAGING EDITOR

In a traditional play performance, the costumes, set designs and music work together to draw audiences into a realistic world. These elements rarely take center stage over the main plot.

JOSEPH

• Showtimes are at 8 p.m. on Friday, Saturday, June 26 and June 28.
 • Showtimes are at 2 p.m. on Sunday and June 29.

• Tickets are available at the McLeod Box Office for $10 for adults, $8 for seniors, $6 for children, and $5 for SIU students.

75-minute performance.

Director Thomas Kidd said the original score is heavily based on different styles of music.

Rockabilly, country and calypso music all blend to give the performance a silly, upbeat feeling. He said the expanded score that the playhouse is using is similar in style to the original score.

"There is a lot of crazed creativity in this production," he said. "It's such a mish-mash of different things that between the design crew and director, we came up with a pretty fresh idea for it."

"It's just fun and silly rock 'n' roll. It's supposed to make everyone feel good."

THOMAS KIDD,
 DIRECTOR, "JOSEPH AND THE AMAZING TECHNICOLOR DREAMCOAT"

Based on the biblical story, the rock-opera recounts the tale of Joseph and his adventures in Egypt.

Joseph, the favorite of 12 brothers, is sold into slavery by his jealous brothers when he receives a beautiful, multi-colored coat from their father. After Joseph endures a few mishaps as a slave, a pharaoh's servant discovers Joseph has the ability to interpret dreams.

Joseph is taken to Egypt to help the pharaoh understand the troubling dreams he is having about famine. Joseph deciphers the dreams, saves Egypt from a disastrous famine and becomes the pharaoh's personal aid.

With its bright colors and its fast pace, Kidd said the production company has tried to gear the opera toward children and families. Kidd has included choir of 17 local children to provide backup vocals.

"The musical was originally sung by school-children," Kidd said. "It's just fun and silly rock 'n' roll. It's supposed to make everyone feel good."

Set designer Lee Maples said he kept a child's mind-set when he planned the Egyptian-inspired set. Various scenes include the use of dancing cacti, snake puppets and a even a flying buzzard.

"I didn't want to replicate it from an artifact sense," he said. "I wanted to replicate it from kids' eyes. Everything is bold and bigger than it seems."

To make its own mark on the production, the crew created identities for the more traditionally flat characters.

"The actors are somewhat dictated by what the design is," Kidd said.

The usually mysterious narrator has become a clone of the school teacher Ms. Frizzle from the popular children's book series, "The Magic School Bus." Also, the usually bland brother characters now have separate identities that reflect the different musical styles heard in the production.

The character of Joseph, played by Chicago actor Charlie Clark, remains the everlasting dreamer, but his co-star, the pharaoh, played by actor David Shamburger, has been molded into a younger Elvis compared to the older, more lavish Elvis in other productions.

In the end, Kidd said the production resembles a big cartoon.

The rest of the panel will be comprised of state legislators and experts in marketing, grape-growing and winemaking.

Representatives from the Illinois Department of Agriculture and the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs also will have seats on the board.

Besides providing information and technical support to people looking into or already in the grape and wine industry, the council would try to convince consumers to buy Illinois wine instead of products from another state or country.

"People in Illinois buy and consume 24 or 25 million gallons of wine a year," McGuire said. "Less than 100,000 gallons is from Illinois."

aroma, and a taste to match.

"It's hard to get a peach wine that tastes like peaches, because of the filtering process," he said.

Though usual festival fare consists of food on sticks — corn dogs and cotton candy ad nauseam — the Taste of Southern Illinois will offer more exotic cuisine to cleanse the palate.

The event's food will be provided by Seafood Specialties of Anna, which specializes in barbecued

Lenzi said that is about one-third of 1 percent, while more-established wineries in Missouri and Ohio provide about 5 percent of the wine consumed in those states. Lenzi said he hopes Illinois can reach such levels with the help of the council.

But boosting Illinois wine sales would not be the only goal of the council, because wine production requires grapes.

"We know some of the wine-making grapes will grow here," McGuire said, noting that Illinois produced a good amount of wine and grapes before.

Prohibition stifled alcohol production during the 1920s.

He also said the state's grape production can supply only half of the wine made in Illinois. The rest of the grapes are bought from other states or countries.

Southern Illinois is especially suitable for grape production because of its geography and climate, said state Sen. Dave Luetchfeld, R-Okawville, who sponsored the bill.

He said the hilly, rolling land in many parts of Southern Illinois is better-suited for grapes than the glacier-plained flatlands in the northern part of the state.

"A lot of the land down here isn't suitable for growing corn and so forth," Luetchfeld said.

"Grapes need to be grown on land that will drain. It's (Southern Illinois) simply a good place to do it."

McGuire said growing grapes is not a simple business to manage, however, because a four-year gap lies between the initial planting and the first harvest.

Despite the lag between investment and return, growing grapes still can be a lucrative business.

"It is documented that it's profitable to grow grapes," McGuire said.

The economic benefits could go further than grape and wine production, however. The council also hopes to boost tourism through a bigger wine industry.

"All three (grapes, wine and tourism) have an impact," Lenzi said, "but tourism has the disproportionate share."

McGuire said although the council would serve the wine and grape industries, SIUC also could benefit.

"We can use our support research activity, that's support for our education programs," he said. "That would be something we could point to with pride, saying we had a hand in the growth of the wine industry in Illinois."

Press liaisons at Edgar's office said the bill has not yet reached the governor's desk, and could not comment on whether or not the governor will sign the legislation.

However, Luetchfeld said he has received no indication that Edgar objects to creating the council.

College Horoscope

The sun's in Cancer this week, so the focus is on domestic matters. Find ways to save time through technology on Monday and Tuesday, with more in Aquarius. Travel by water or hang out at the beach on Wednesday and Thursday, while the moon's in Pisces. On Friday the moon goes into Aries, squaring the Cancer sun. This brings confrontations and personal growth through Saturday. Most people won't get much rest until the moon goes into Taurus on Sunday.

Aries (March 21-April 19): There's a big push to stay home all this week. Your true love's involved, too. Find the information you need on Monday and Tuesday. Take care of obligations Wednesday and Thursday. You'll start getting stronger Thursday night, and stay at maximum intensity through Sunday. Be careful during that phase you're unable to do something outrageous. Keep the alcohol to a minimum. Sleep on Sunday.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Expect a test on Monday morning. Your technical skills help you advance on Tuesday. A neighbor becomes a friend on Wednesday. Play on Thursday, as much as possible. You may have to deal with an emergency on Friday. The weekend's hectic, but you can handle it. Help everybody stay calm by your example. You'll be in full control again by Sunday.

Gemini (May 21-June 21): You're receiving lots of attention from a foreigner on Monday. An investment pays off on Tuesday. Listen carefully on Wednesday and Thursday, especially to the body language. Your friends will help you move or reorganize your life over the weekend. Get finished by Sunday so you'll have time for a private conversation.

Cancer (June 22-July 22): Get your finances in order on Monday and Tuesday. Make the whole process easier with the help of modern technology. Talk to a good friend long distance on Wednesday, and set up a visit. Meet in Hawaii on Thursday. A pop quiz is likely on Friday. The party is hectic Saturday, but calms back down on Sunday.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your roommate will give you nothing but grief on Monday and Tuesday, unless you do whatever he or she wants. Succumb gracefully. Pay off your bills and pile any extra into your savings account Wednesday and Thursday. You'll need it later. Finish all your homework before Friday, so you can take off on your weekend adventure early. Have lots of fun before Sunday; you'll have to toe the line then.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your jangled nerves start to heal on Monday. The workload's intense on Tuesday, but you'll relax. Just take your time. Save Wednesday and Thursday for romance, as much as possible. Friday is good for doing bills and buying expensive things. Your sweetheart starts talking about commitments on Saturday, if you're going to make one, wait until Sunday night.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Don't let romance interfere with your class schedule Monday or Tuesday. Work not only with your brain on Wednesday and Thursday, but also with your intuition. Face a challenge squarely Friday, and you could win. Friendship turns to love on Saturday. Go shopping for something special and valuable on Sunday.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): You'll have trouble concentrating on your classes Monday and Tuesday. You want to think about home and family instead. Spend time with a gentle friend on Wednesday, to calm your nerves. Daytime's best for romance Thursday; you may have work to do that evening. You're busy as 10 hammers Friday and Saturday. Start getting serious about choosing a partner on Sunday.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study computers and other machinery on Monday and Tuesday, with an eye to increasing your income. Stay home Wednesday night and listen to soothing music. A Thursday surprise is unexpected, but expensive. Wait until Friday and you'll have a better time for less money. There's lots of action Saturday, so pay attention. Finish your chores on Sunday.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Put your money where your heart is on Monday and Tuesday. Learn more about your emotions on Wednesday and Thursday. Make changes to your household, your partnership and your study space on Friday and Saturday. On Sunday you can rest.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You're exceptionally lonely Monday and Tuesday. Go shopping for school-related items on Wednesday. On Thursday, pay back a woman you owe. You're thinking fast on Friday and Saturday, which is good. There won't be time to ponder. Stay home Sunday and put down roots.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Bureaucratic paperwork makes you crazy Monday and Tuesday. It'll be a relief to have it done. Love blossoms anew on Wednesday. Try not to be late to your first class Thursday morning. Shopping on Friday leads to unpleasant facts — for instance, what you want costs more than what you have. Do an extra job Saturday to make more money. Learn how to stretch your resources Sunday. You'll eventually achieve your goals.

Birthday This Week ... Born June 23-24: You're changing to keep up with new technology. It's tough now, but worth the investment. Born June 25-26: Travel by water will be wonderful this year. Don't sit, save for it and do it. Born June 27-28: You have a very special secret. Born June 29-30: Don't fret — you'll be a better person for it. One will come through for you when most needed. 1997 Tribune Media Services. All rights reserved.

ALL MY CHILDREN: Jack comforted Erica as she prepared to return. Sonya, and gave her a kiss. When Erica turned up at Wildwind with the baby, Edmund and Maria were out, but Dina was there, and an argument ensued. Laura had second thoughts about making love and told Scott she wants to wait. Liza stunned Adam with the news that she now owns WRCV. Trevor and Janet took Jamie and Amanda on a picnic, but Jamie later went missing. Kevin encountered prejudice when he met his new college roommate. Coming: Erica makes a noble sacrifice.

ANOTHER WORLD: Toni was delighted to be reunited with her childhood friend, Tyrone, even as she grew closer to Chris. After Dr. Ambrose confessed, Shane was fired. When Rachel went into labor following a fall, Shane helped to deliver her twins. Paulina kept it a secret from Joe that she's been taking diet pills. Rejected by Sofia, Nick resumed drinking, and in an inebriated state, fell off the roof. Vicki realized that Ula still carries a torch for Shane. Coming: Cindy wonders about her role in Grant's plans.

AS THE WORLD TURNS: After James instructed Amber to deal with Jack, Molly discovered that Jack had been seen with an optimistic about getting Lily to marry him. Meanwhile, Damian remembered more of his life. James panicked when he realized that his microfilm was missing. Lucinda and Emily then overheard James trying to get someone with relieving David's pressure on him. Samantha desperately tried to reach Lucinda. Coming: Damian wants to pick up the pieces.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Hope was so distressed watching Bo and Billie's wedding, that she fainted. With Victor hospitalized by another stroke, Victor vowed to see him, though Kate fiercely objected. Stefano, unaware that Susan was disguised as Kristen, stopped her from leaving Salem with the baby. Lynn had a change of heart, and tried to help Laura escape, but they were pursued by Stefano's men. Kristen accidentally hit a gas line in the secret room where she and Marlena were trapped. Coming: Jennifer confides in the wrong person.

GENERAL HOSPITAL: As Bobbie tried to get into Stefan's computer, he began to suspect something. Sonya became a suspect in Dorman's murder. Brenda left her own hair in place of Sonya's for the sample Taggart requested. Ned and Alexis had their first real date. Monica told Alan elements of the truth regarding Emily's memory loss. A pregnant Carly informed Tony that she may decide to leave Port Charles for the sake of her unborn child. Coming: Carly ponders a new dilemma.

GUIDING LIGHT: Annie's world collapsed when Dr. Levine testified. With Josh and Rex finally enjoying happiness together, Annie found herself in deep trouble. Dinah and Matt teamed up to find Vanessa. Harley had a candid conversation with Buzz, then demanded answers to some difficult questions from Jenna. Michelle got a sign that she shouldn't give up the search for the person with her mother's heart. Coming: Blake hopes for better times.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: With Antonio a finalist for the law school grant, he met with the school's board. Patrick was arrested. After being bailed out, Patrick admitted he had been involved with the Lord William bombing, but insisted that he's being set up. Antonio surprised Andy with a romantic question. Hank and R.J. joined forces to help Rachel after she received disturbing news from a woman she met at Club Indigo. Coming: Kelly pays for her mistake.

It's not the places you go, but the people you meet

THE VAGABOND: Spoiled, rotten college kids provide entertainment on train ride through Europe.

DOUG LANSKY
COLLEGE PRESS SERVICE

HAMBURG, GERMANY — It has been said it's not the places you go but the people you meet along the way that make travel interesting.

Well, judge for yourself.

The following is an actual conversation between two American college coeds taking some time off to travel around Europe during their junior year abroad. I overheard their exchange on a train between Copenhagen, Denmark, and Hamburg, Germany, while I was writing on my laptop in the same couchette.

WOMAN No. 1: My favorite place was Paris. I was with this guy Antonio. He's Italian.

WOMAN No. 2: You met him in Paris or Italy?

WOMAN No. 1: Paris. Well, it was kind of embarrassing. I met his friend, Ben, first. Ben grabbed me on the street. He's a crepe maker. I thought he was disgusting at first, but, you know, then we started talking. And he was pretty cool. So we went out. And he took his friend Antonio. And he was gorgeous. He's a part-time model, you know. That's how we met. So that's why I'm going back to Paris now. Have you been to Paris?

WOMAN No. 2: Yeah, just for a few days.

WOMAN No. 1: How'd you like it?

WOMAN No. 2: You know, like, I must be the only one who feels this way. But I didn't like it. It was dirty.

WOMAN No. 1: Have you been to Rome?

It's even dirtier.

WOMAN No. 2: Really?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah, don't even go.

WOMAN No. 2: Have you been to Salzburg?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah, have you?

WOMAN No. 2: Yeah, did you go on the Sound of Music Tour?

WOMAN No. 1: I had to, my mom would have killed me if I didn't.

WOMAN No. 2: Same with my mom.

WOMAN No. 1: And did you go to that brewery, the one in the monastery?

WOMAN No. 2: That was the best. I went with some Australians. Have you traveled with any Australians?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah, I love the Australians.

WOMAN No. 2: They are so cool. They are so much fun. I have to go to Australia.

WOMAN No. 1: Me, too. That would be such a blast.

WOMAN No. 2: Have you been to Vienna?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah. It was beautiful. But I just had time to get off the train and have a pizza. But I'm definitely going to go back.

WOMAN No. 2: Did you go to Munich?

WOMAN No. 1: No, I had to skip it. I was in Sweden visiting some friends.

WOMAN No. 2: Oh, how'd you like Sweden?

WOMAN No. 1: It was pretty cool. My friends were foreign exchange students at my school, so I knew them from before. Anyway, they showed me all around. It's really expensive, though, if you don't know someone.

WOMAN No. 2: Do you speak any Swedish?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah. I learned some words while I was there.

WOMAN No. 2: Are you fluent?

WOMAN No. 1: Not really. I just know "Tack" and "Nej Tack" and "Ja." I think it's pretty similar to Dutch.

WOMAN No. 2: Amsterdam is the coolest. Did you go to a coffee shop there?

WOMAN No. 1: No. I went to the Hard Rock Cafe. You know what? It wasn't even affiliated with the Hard Rock Cafe system but I didn't know that until I went to the one in London. We have one in Las Vegas, where I'm from, so I wanted to get the T-shirt from the one in Amsterdam.

WOMAN No. 2: You're from Vegas?

WOMAN No. 1: Yeah. You wouldn't believe how many people over here have never heard of Las Vegas. I bring this postcard along to show people (she passes around a postcard of Circus Circus Casino at night). Anyway, my friends wanted me to go to the Bulldog but I didn't feel like it. So I just went to the Hard Rock alone. Have you found that people are surprised that you're traveling alone?

WOMAN No. 2: Oh, my god, all the time. Except, I've been traveling with other travelers most of the time. But when I'm not, everybody thinks it's so strange.

WOMAN No. 1: Totally.

WOMAN No. 2: But this is definitely the best way to travel. It's so much easier to get off the beaten path.

WOMAN No. 1: I know. I have this friend back home who is a part-time model. She spent two months in Europe last year traveling alone and had the best time. That's why I decided to go.

WOMAN No. 2: What did you think of London? I'm going there now.

WOMAN No. 1: You are going to love it. It's one of my favorites. You have to go to Harrod's and the British museum.

WOMAN No. 2: What's Harrod's?

WOMAN No. 1: That's OK, I didn't know either. It's this great department store — like Macy's, but better. Just trust me, you have to go.

WOMAN No. 2: Is it worth going to Piccadilly Circus?

WOMAN No. 1: It's not a real circus or anything, you know. It's just like Times Square. It wasn't that impressive. Vegas is way more impressive... (three seconds of silence) Where are you coming from now?

WOMAN No. 2: Norway.

WOMAN No. 1: Oh, how was it?

WOMAN No. 2: Really expensive. But it was beautiful.

WOMAN No. 1: How much did you see?

WOMAN No. 2: I was just there for, like, two days, but I took this day-tour called Norway in a Nutshell — so I saw most of the good parts.

WOMAN No. 1: Did you go to Prague?

WOMAN No. 2: That was the best. Did you?

WOMAN No. 1: That has to be one of my favorites. Did you try the original Budweiser?

WOMAN No. 2: Yes, it's so much better than the American Budweiser.

WOMAN No. 1: I didn't like it that much, but I kept one of the bottles. It's in my pack. That's why it weighs about 60 pounds. I can barely lift it. I brought way too much stuff.

WOMAN No. 2: Tell me about it. I have three pairs of shoes.

WOMAN No. 1: Me, too. And the only time I used my good ones was in Madrid. Did you go there?

WOMAN No. 2: Not yet. You recommend it?

WOMAN No. 1: No, not really. I mean, the night life is pretty good, but everyone smokes.

WOMAN No. 2: Oh, my god, I am so sick of smoke. That's one thing I miss about the U.S. — clean air!

WOMAN No. 1: Then definitely don't go to Spain — everyone smokes. And Madrid is pretty lame. You can skip it. But Barcelona — oh, my god — you have to go to Barcelona. It's one of my favorites.

ME: Yeah, well, like, oh, my god, yes!

"I love the challenge of it," Davis said. "I tell my wife I stay out longer when I don't hit (any fish) than when I do hit."

Both Wright and Davis release the fish they catch, preferring just to catch them rather than to eat them.

"We do it just for sport," Davis said. "Some like to golf. We like to fish."

They use crank baits that rattle as they glide through the water, because Davis said bass generally are attracted to sound and color.

While some fishermen prefer jigs like crank baits, others enjoy the challenge of live bait. Jigs are artificial lures that move up and down in the water.

Ron Reed, who operates Cooksey's Marine, Sale and Bait Shop, 7832-old state Route 13 in Marion, said fishing with live bait is more casual.

"Jigs are a faster way of fishing," he said. "With jigs, you're moving all the time. You've got to have patience to use live bait."

He also said Crab Orchard Lake has the best fishing.

"Crab Orchard — it is the best lake," Reed said. "It is No. 1 in the area for catching fish and also the size of the fish."

But the best way to catch fish is practice. "Just keep at it," Wright said. "There is no real big secret. You just get better with it. Get a good tackle and go fishing."

Fishing holes

TRAVIS AKIN
DE OUTDOORS EDITOR

Local anglers share hot spots, tips for catching the big one in Southern Illinois.

PHOTOS BY PAT MAISON/DAILY EGYPTIAN

MOTORING: Fishermen motor to find a place to fish on Crab Orchard Lake.

Veteran fishermen say beginning anglers should learn other sportsmen's techniques, but the main trade secret to catching fish is still: "Get a tackle box and go."

Prime fishing spots such as Lake Murphysboro, Kinkaid Lake, Devil's Kitchen Lake and Crab Orchard Lake are within 15-minute drives of campus.

Charles Lackey, a Murphysboro resident, has spent more than 50 years fishing Southern Illinois lakes.

He bought his own rod and reel when he was 10 and has been fishing ever since.

"I start in early spring and go until it gets so cold it is uncomfortable," Lackey said.

The one thing Lackey has learned is to watch other fishermen.

"People are always trying something different," Lackey said. "They try this, and they try that. You see someone else doing something, you try it. You learn from others more than anything else."

Joe Carter, a Murphysboro resident, said taking note of the lures people use is a good way to learn what to do.

"Try everything," Carter said. "I mostly go where the fishermen go because the old-timers know where to go and what to do."

For boat fishing, Lackey said Cedar Lake yields the best results.

"I always catch a fish when I go there," he said. "The scenery is nice, and I have caught a lot of fish over the years."

Lackey said Lake Murphysboro is his spot for bank fishing, but he said the moss and the weeds have made it difficult to fish there. The moss gets on the lures and they have to be cleaned with almost every cast.

But Frank Wright, a Herrin resident, prefers fishing from his boat more than anything else because he likes to get out on the open water to find bass.

Fishing at Crab Orchard Lake is usually where he can found on the weekends.

"On weekends, I come out here about 5 in the morning," he said. "There is more bass here than anywhere else."

Wright and his brother-in-law, Tom Davis, frequent the lake because they enjoy trying to figure out how to get the fish to bite.

DROP A LINE: Charles Lackey of Murphysboro bank-fishes the shores of Lake Murphysboro.

New bike trail to open on old tracks

RIDING RAILS: Scenic 10 mile path 35 miles from Carbondale to open next year.

SHANDEL RICHARDSON
DAILY EGYPTIAN REPORTER

Southern Illinois bicyclists can take a ride on an abandoned railroad track next summer, when the old Tunnel Hill track will be converted into a 10-mile bike trail lined with streams and lakes.

The trail will be about 35 miles southeast of Carbondale and connect the Johnson County towns of Tunnel Hill and Vienna.

The Department of National Resources and the Illinois Department of Transportation will fund the project, and construction is set to begin this summer.

Upon completion, bikers will be able to see the historic scenery along the trail, such as saloons used by the railroaders of the past in Tunnel Hill.

Within five years, constructors plan to expand the trail to Harrisburg, stretching it to 43 miles.

The trail will be the only designated off-road opportunity for cyclists in Southern Illinois, said Ned Enrietto, Department of National Resources regional landscape architect.

But to accommodate average cyclists, the trail will be mostly flat.

"We want to attract all bikers, not the just mountain bikers," Enrietto said. "With a less-challenging trail, more people will be able to use it."

Developers said they hope the new trail brings tourism and job opportunities to the area.

Bill Kirk, Illinois Department of Transportation planning engineer, said businesses will benefit the most.

"There's going to be opportunities for bike shops, hotels and restaurants to open everywhere," Kirk said.

Jeff Jones, Shawnee Mountain Bike Association president, said he awaits the trail's completion next summer. He said because there will be no admission fee to use the trail, it will be a fun place to bring the family.

"Being a mountain biker," Jones said, "this trail will allow me to take the wife and kids out for a ride."
